

RAD 125 : IMAGING EQUIPMENT

This course provides the student with knowledge of basic physics and fundamentals of imaging equipment. Topics include information on x-ray production, beam characteristics, units of measurement, and imaging equipment components. Upon completion, students will be able to identify imaging equipment as well as provide a basic explanation of the principles associated with image production.

Credits 3

Prerequisites

Successful completion of all required previous semester courses.